London, October 29.

THE contrary Winds having hindred the Arrival of the Mails from Holland, and thereby with-held the freſher Advices, we have an Opportunity of inſerting the Account of the Entry of his Czarian Majeſty into Petersbourg when he returned from his late naval Expedition; which by reaſon of its length could not have place in its turn.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Oct. 16.

Petersbourg, Sept. 21. On the 19th Inſtant, her Czarian Majeſty was happily brought to Bed of a Princeſs, and the next Day the Czar arrived here in perfect Health from his late Expedition, after having ſuffered at Sea a violent Tempeſt, wherein he was in great Danger, the Boltſprit of the Ship he was in being carried away by the Wind. His Majeſty made his Entry into this City in the manner of a Triumph, for the Victory he gained over the Swedes upon the Coaſt of Finland. The Order of that Entry was thus. Firſt ſome of the ſmall Veſſels who had ſerved in that Fight advanced up the River, which were followed by all the Barks, ſix Galleys and a Man of War taken from the Swedes, with its Colours lowered. Next came the Ship of the Rear-Admiral, on board which was his Czarian Majeſty in Perſon, and the Rear-Guard was compoſed of the reſt of the Muſcovite Men of War employed in the Expedition. When this Fleet was arrived near the Bridge of the Caſtle, (upon which a Triumphal Arch was built) all the Ships made a general Diſcharge of their Cannon, and the Cannon from the Caſtle returned the Salvo. Then they all landed in the following Order. I. A Company of Brebrezinski's Regiment of Foot. II. The Swediſh Artillery upon their Carriages, taken laſt Year in the Action againſt General Ahrenfeld. III. Sixty three Colours and Standards taken from the Swedes. IV. The Swediſh Subaltern Officers followed by the Soldiers and Seamen who have been taken Priſoners. V. Two Companies of the Regiment above-named. VI. Divers Swediſh Officers of high Degree. VII. The Colours of the Frigate whereon the Swediſh Rear-Admiral ſailed, which was carried ſpread out to its full length by four Soldiers. VIII. The Swediſh Rear-Admiral, Count Ehrenſchield in Perſon. IX. The Czar, in Quality of Rear-Admiral of the Muſcovite Fleet. X. The March cloſed up by the reſt of the Regiment of Brebrezinski. His Czarian Majeſty being arrived under the Triumphal Arch we have ſpoken of, was complimented upon the Victory he had gained over the Swedes, not only by all his Miniſters, but alſo by the Muſcovite Nobility and by the Foreign Miniſters. The Governour of Moſcow made afterwards a fine Harangue, wherein he thanked his Majeſty in the Name of the whole Muſcovite Empire for the great Services he had done the State in this Expedition, and declared him Vice-Admiral, as a Mark of Acknowledgement from all his Subjects. When his Majeſty afterwards entred the City a new diſcharge of the Cannon of the Caſtle was made, which was anſwered by thoſe on the Ramparts and in all the Ships in the Haven, while in the mean time he marched forwards to the Houſe of Prince Menzikof, before which another Triumphal Arch was built. He was there received by that Prince, accompanied by divers other Grandees of the Palace, who had advanced before the reſt for that purpoſe, and being conducted into the great Hall, he was entertained with a magnificent Dinner; wherein the Swediſh Rear-Admiral Ehrenſchield, Priſoner, was placed at the Table between his Czarian Majeſty and Prince Menzikof, and the Czar had the Civility to condole with him upon his Misfortune, and to applaud very publickly the vigorous Reſiſtance he had made before he would be taken. The other Swediſh Officers were at a ſecond Table, and the Feaſt laſted till late at Night. Two Days after a very fine Fire-work was played off on that Occaſion. The whole Fleet of his Czarian Majeſty is come to Croonſlot, where they are at work in diſarming them, the Seaſon being too far advanced to return to Sea. But Prince Galiczin and the Admiral-General are ſent to Finland, to diſlodge from the Neighbourhood of Vaſa a ſmall Body of the Swediſh Army which was there formed; and they will be ſo ſurrounded, that it will be impoſſible for them to make any Inroads into Finland in the Winter.
